

Sawatdii kha and welcome to Sirinya's Thailand blog

My name is Sirinya and on this site I'd like to post, write and share everything that interests me about Thailand. However, this may not be a typical travel blog about one of the most popular countries in Southeast Asia, because my focus shall be on Thai culture, art, history and on the people. Even though being based and living in Germany, I'd like to write this blog in English in order to reach a broader and international audience. My aim is not only to entertain you but to provide you with information and facts about the Kingdom of former Siam, its culture and history that may not be generally known.

Thailand

Bowl of roses at Suan Pakkad Palace Museum, Bangkok, Thailand

I hope you'd like to accompany me on my journey through topics of Thai culture, art, history and people!

"However far a society progresses though no bound, emotional faith to our forefathers' roots breathes eternity." (Saengthit Kamlangchai)